

Jon Gosselin doesn't practice what he preaches

Plus: Katherine Heigl's baby had open-heart surgery at three months

Heigl's baby had open-heart surgery

When Josh Kelley and Katherine Heigl announced in September that they'd adopted Naleigh, a baby from South Korea with special needs, neither elaborated on what those needs were. Now, Kelley is opening up about Naleigh's heart surgery that took place before she was adopted.

"Naleigh's definitely getting stronger, so much so that she's crawling and starting to pull herself up," he told Life & Style at the Global Down Syndrome Foundation's fashion show in Denver on Oct. 10. "She had two holes in her heart when she was born, so she had open-heart surgery when she was 3 months old."

Naleigh is 11 months old now and Kelley says that he and Heigl aren't going to stop with one child. "We'll add to our family eventually," he told the magazine. "Naleigh's so good, though, that our next kid is probably going to be a little hellion."

By Courtney Hazlett

The Scoop

msnbc.com

updated 6:23 p.m. PT, Tues., Oct. 13, 2009