SEPTEMBER 2017

Meet Award-winning actor Garret Dillahunt at Sie FilmCenter Screening of Any Day Now!

Dillahunt will meet fans and provide an intimate Q&A for his film Any Day Now, a story of a young man with Down syndrome in the foster care system.

DONATE

Support life-changing research and medical care for people with Down syndrome today.

OTHER EXCITING NEWS!

Global has strong response to CBS story on eradication of Down syndrome

Global was shocked to see that misinformation and discrimination towards people with Down syndrome still exists. In response, Global shows why educating the medical community and pregnant women with accurate information is imperative.

MDC/Richmond American Homes Foundation provides generous research grant to the Global Down Syndrome Foundation

The grant will help fund Dr. Huntington Potter and his team's initial findings, which suggest related cell biological dysfunctions between Down syndrome and Huntington's disease, taking us one step closer to the long-term goal of disease intervention.

Down Syndrome in the 21st Century symposium attracts a roster of Global experts

Global's medical professionals, scientists, and self-advocates took center stage at this important symposium organized by the Society of Pediatric Pathology. They shared exciting updates and challenges facing patients with Down syndrome and their families.

Inspirational speaker, entrepreneur Tim Harris dances the night away at Global event!

Harris rocked out with a hundred self-advocates, families, and friends at Global's September I Love You Dance Party! The night featured some of the best dance moves we've seen yet!

Support life-changing research and medical care for people with Down syndrome today.